Mrs. Dangel's Class

September 13th, 2019

Dear Parents,

We enjoyed dressing up for Homecoming this week and sharing our clothing each day. The kids looked great! Go RAMS!

In science we talked about what makes an insect and insect and what do all animals need to live and grow. We drew what our monarchs need for food as caterpillars and butterflies in our science notebooks. We only released two butterflies this week but we have more coming and several still munching milkweed as caterpillars. We love watching the life cycle in our room.

We connected our sight words to writing on Thursday and wrote our first story! We wrote "I can" together and then tried our best to tap out sounds to write the next word(s). We then illustrated our sentences and got to share them at our small groups! All the kids worked so hard and felt proud of finishing this challenging task!

In math we reviewed shapes with some small group activities, a graphing game with partners, and worked with our high school helper on learning those shape names. We looked for shapes in the room too. Mrs. Dangel quizzed each student on the shapes on Friday. Next week we will focus on numbers! Thankyou for reviewing things at home as well, it really helps kids remember the skills we work on at school.

Next week brings some changes including homework as we meet our first letter person! Look for the homework bag to come home on Wednesday! The kids will also have more table work during small groups to be responsible to finish most mornings. I am excited to see all the kids grow in this area.

Have a great weekend!
